Subject: Manuscript Review Update
To: <\_wisnarni0603@gmail.com>

Dear Wisnarni,

I hope you are doing well. I would like to inform you that the review process has been completed. The Editor required that your paper be updated based on the following comments from our reviewers.

Reviewer 1:

1. The literature review is too thin.
2. The methodology description is too short. More justification and definition of the selected methodology and data collection strategy should be discussed.
3. The significance of the study was not presented in a manner that has some urgency or for a broad set of readers.
4. Articulate better the implications to practice and further research.

Reviewer 2:

1. Suggested Title: Your paper title serves as the initial guide to the essence of your work so please revise your title so it includes the most important elements of your report. For example, what is your method for conducting this study? Please revise your title.
2. Abstract: Your current abstract should be revised and please construct your abstract in a concise manner that presents readers with an instructive map to the paper and I find this helps you to organize your thoughts and to guide you as you revise the rest of your manuscript. Please compose your abstract in a logical and accurate reflection of the organizational structure of the paper. Your abstract reflects organizational structure of paper (i.e., presents problem/focus of study, methodology, findings, key points from discussion of findings, and implications/recommendations)

3. Introduction: Your current intro is not convincing. Your intro needs to convince the readers that your local study is of global importance. You can develop this rationale by formulating answers to questions such as the following: Does your study address a gap in the body of knowledge on this topic? Is the informational need of local stakeholders similar to others on a more global level? Are you addressing a significant problem, dilemma, or larger question with your study? Also, your intro should include a guiding/central research question that informs the methodological approach. Please revise it.

4. Literature Review: please revise the lit review and pay attention to the following:

Your review of the literature typically includes two types of sources: (a) those materials which help you to define the phenomenon in question and (b) those research materials which help you to identify what is known and not known about the phenomenon in question. It is this last part of the review of the literature from which you establish the need and focus for your study. Please remember this section is a literature “review” and not “view” so you need to show that the information presented here communicates your reflections of the collected understanding of the topic in question and not a series of reports from the individual sources you read.

5. Methods: Your method is not clear yet. Please revise your method section. We ask each of our authors to write their methods section in a stepwise fashion such that anyone else could use the same procedures/plan that you used. Therefore, I am suggesting that you reorganize this section to show your progression through data gathering and analysis. I am suggesting an outline below and each section should have an associated heading:

- Please provide your rationale for selecting your current design in general and your particular design choice in particular and discuss how these choices are appropriate to answering the question under study
- Please explain every step of data generation and collection and provide a rationale for each of your research decisions. The participants, their characteristics and their selection methods should be described in detail and justified.
- Clearly describe each step of your analysis of the data—include an example for illustration. You may present each step in terms of it from both a conceptual and operational perspective (please cite the literature that you used as a guide).

6. Results: Please address the followings:

- Findings should respond to the purpose of the study, and
- Should be presented systematically, please relate to your research questions.

7. Discussion: Please address the following:

- Discuss your findings in terms of what was previously known and not know about the focus of your research. Did your findings cohere and/or contrast with previous research on similar groups, locations, people, etc.?

- Discuss the limitations of your study. These limitations can be organized around simple distinctions of the choices you made in your study regarding who, what, where, when, why, and how.
- Discuss your position on the generalizability of your results.
- Discuss the implications your research has for pertinent stakeholders (e.g., future research for other investigators, practice suggestions for practitioners, or policy considerations for administrators).

8. Conclusion

- Conclusion must be drawn based on research questions and purposes of your study to show that they have been answered.

Thank you very much. Please feel free to reach out to me with any concerns.
