INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the Problem

Modern society nowadays is almost impossible not to be exposed to social media. Whether it realize or not, social media with all its content has become a part of human life. Along with the times, the presence of social media is increasingly diverse and growing. The use of social media today has grown so rapidly along with advances in communication technology, where people are faced with many choices to be able to convey/access social media.

The use of web-based and mobile technology to transform communication into an interactive discussion is referred to as social media. Magazines, Internet forums, weblogs, social blogs, microblogging, wikis, podcasts, images or pictures, videos, ratings, and social bookmarking are just a few of the various formats that social media can take. It goes without saying that social media platforms like Facebook, Twitter, Orkut, MySpace, Skype, and others are heavily used for communication given that the globe is in the midst of a social media revolution (Baruah, 2012). Besides for communication use social media also used for entertain it's self and for educational purposes.

Social media in education are used to foster learning by allowing for social interactions, active participation, and engagement of students in classroom discussion, (blended/online courses and social media solutions) (Williams, et al., 2017-90). Especially in English learning students can learn much and also the educators as well because they can find teaching material and also apply those material in the class. By utilizing Social media students will be more active in exploring and innovating so that they can make their own creativity. The ease of accessing information digitally makes them more independent because they can find or access the content relate to the lesson or sharing with their mates through Social media (Friedman ; 2013-4).

Because English is seen as an international language and is used by people all over the world to connect with one another, it is one of the languages that is frequently used in social media. Students in particular use English as a foreign language in Indonesia, since it is only taught in specific settings like schools, universities, or courses as one of the subjects offered there. English language learners believe that mobile learning can enable them to learn anywhere and at any time since they utilize their mobile devices to communicate with one another on social media (Ayuningtyas in Al Arif ; 2019-225). Students may use youtube for the subject-related materials and also utilize the eLearn's Blog, forum or wiki tools because of the subject requirements, or access facebook or other social media tools for their own process. Students were not only using Facebook formally for required course-related learning by peer interactions (students-students), but also informally for non-required course related matters ( Li ; 2017-149).

In the EFL context, the use of Social media provides some opportunities to develop students' English language skills. (Anwas, et al ; 2020-48) by using social media students can access English contents like texts, audios, videos and even practice their English with foreigners. Because English words are not pronounced the way they are spelled, audio visual contents provides a perfect example on how to pronounce them properly. In this case students also can visually observe how the speaker's lips move to produce the proper pronunciation. Then, using the textual contents created, students are expected to practice reading and learn how to write grammatically correct sentences. Then also by practice with foreigners students can enhance their speaking skills.

The Social media help the students to improve their English skills from the content of the Social media that is more varied and this encourages students in English language learning using Social media (Al Arif ; 2019-231). For students various types of Social media contents and communication can be learning media to practice English. The media can communicate cross geographical with everyone even with native. The advantages of the media is minimalizing of shyness such as verbal communication in English. Social media can be used for daily practicing to improve English skills ( Anwas, Sugiarti and Permatasari ; 2020-43).

Besides providing opportunities to develop students' English language skills, some ELT studies investigating Social media and found out that Social media is a remedy for reducing students affective filters. It is also known as negative psychological factors such as anxiety, lack motivation, boredom and frustration, which have a substantial impact on students' language learning process (Zayed & Al-Ghamidi ; 2019).

Studies on how Indonesian students use the social media for learning English are scarce conducted especially in State Islamic Institute of Kerinci and hardly find in English Department. Based on the observation of the researcher and it's self, students at State Islamic Institute of Kerinci are familiar with social media as well for English department students. They use social media for many purposes such as for communication, accessing information, entertainment and educational purpose such as learning English. The lecturer need to know how students use the social media and what they perceived while using it for learning English. So we can analyze and know the use of social media for learning English and might use social media in classroom as learning tools.

Based on the explanation above. The researcher interested carry out a research about "Students' Perceptions and Strategies of Using Social Media for Learning English ( A Study At English Department Of State Islamic Institute of Kerinci Academic Year 2022/2023)."

B. Identification of the Problem

1. Social media have positive and negative impact ( the advantages and challages)
2. Knowing students' perception and strategies of using Social media for learning English can helps lectures to create such a creative teaching and learning.
3. The study about students' perceptions and strategies of using Social media for learning English is hardly available conducted in IAIN Kerinci, particularly at the English Department.

C. Limitation of the Problem

Based on the identification of the problems that have been described, this research be limited to The used of social media for learning English in the third year of English department of State Islamic Institute of Kerinci Academic year 2022/2023

The researcher choose English Department students in third year because they might experienced learning English through social media for enhance their language skills and also because they already participated in research as participant, so it will be easier to cooperate with them.

D. Research Questions

Based on the limitation of the problem above the researcher formulates research questions as follows:

1. What are types of social media are used by the students in learning English?
2. What are the students' perceptions of using Social media for learning English?
3. What are students' learning strategies in using Social media for learning English?
4. What are the advantages that students' perceived of using Social media for learning English?
5. What are the challenges that students' perceived of using social media for learning English?

E. Purposes of the Research

The purposes of this study is to know what social media are used by the students ,student's perception and strategies in using Social media for learning English as well as the advantages and the challenges that students' perceived of using Social media for learning English.

F. Significance of The Research

The research result is estimated to provide the following benefits:

- a. For students, the results of this study are intended to motivate them to learn English, because they can use social media to learn English anytime and anywhere.
- b. For lectures, the results of this research are supposed to give information for lectures to create creatives teaching and learning using Social media in the class. Because Social media is believed to have many benefits for enhancing students' English language skills.

G. Definition of Key term

1. Social Media

Social media are medium in the form of websites and applications involving internet-based technology (Triastuti, Andrianto & Nurul ; 2017-16). The term Social Media refers to the use of web-based and mobile technologies to turn communication into an interactive dialogue. Social media takes on many different forms including magazines, Internet forums, weblogs, social blogs, microblogging, wikis, podcasts, photographs or pictures, video, rating and social bookmarking. (Baruah, 2012).

2. Perception

Etymologically, perception comes from the Latin perception; from percipere, which means to receive or take (Sobur; 445-2010). The term perception is usually used to express the experience of an object or an event that is experienced. This perception is defined as a process that combines and organizes our sensory data (sensing) to be developed in such a way that we can be aware of those around us, including being aware of ourselves (Saleh; 2004-110).

3. Learning Strategies

Learning strategies are the methods students use to acquire information (Dembo ; 2004-13). Oxford (1990) defines learning strategies as “ spesific actions taken by the learner to make learning easier, faster, more enjoyable, more self-directed, more effective and more transferable to new situations”.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Theoretical Review

1. Perception

a. The definition of Perception

Etymologically, perception derived from Latin perception; from percipere, which means to receive or take (Sobur; 445-2010). The term perception is usually used to express the experience of an object or an event that is experienced. This perception is defined as a process that combines and organizes our sensory data (sensing) to be developed in such a way that we can be aware of those around us, including being aware of ourselves (Saleh; 2004-110). While in Oxford perception is the interpretation of sensory information using both the raw data detected by the senses and previous experience.

In addition the interpretation of an item, event, or piece of information that is based on the life experience of the individual performing that interpretation is another way to define perception. They will interpret the encounters brain to spesific impressions, which may vary from one to the next. Thus it also can be said that perception as the meaning of observations ( Gulo in Sobur ; 2010-446). Simply put perception is the process through which information is interpreted by people utilizing their senses. People utilize their sense and brains to observe objects when they are present, and then the information is viewed as intent and influence how people react to it, whether favorably or unfavorably way.

Based on the explanation above, it can be concluded that perception is the ability of the five senses to interpret the surrounding environment so that it can interpret a situation that has been observed.

b. The Process of Perception

Perception does not occur in one second, but occurs through a complex process of the individual. According to Walgito (in Normelani, et al; 2020), the formation of perception through a process flow, which starts from the object that causes the stimulus and the stimulus hits the senses or receptors. Then the stimuli received by the sense organs are continued by the sensory nerves to the brain. Furthermore, there is a process in the brain, so that the individual can realize what he received with the receptor, as a stimulus he received. The process that occurs in the brain / center of consciousness is called the psychological process. At the last stage of the perceptual process, the individual is aware of what is received through the senses (receptors).

According to Sobur, there are three main components in the perception process:

1. Selection, is the process of filtering by the senses against external stimuli, the intensity and type can be a lot or a little.
2. Interpretation, namely the process of organizing information so that it has meaning for someone. Interpretation is influenced by various factors, such as past experience, value system adopted, motivation, personality and intelligence. Interpretation also depends on a person's ability to categorize the information he receives, namely the process of reducing complex information into simple ones.
3. Interpretation and perception are then translated in the form of behavior as a reaction (Depdikbud, 1985, in Soelaeman 1987).

So the perception process is to select, interpret, and round off the information that arrives.

c. Factors Affecting Perception

A person's perception does not just arise, of course there are factors that influence it. According to David Krech and Richard S. Crutchfield call it functional factors, situational factors, structural factors and personal factors. Functional factors are factors that are personal, where factors are factors that influence a person's perception which these factors consist of experience, motivation and personality. The third is the factor in which the first-mentioned word will direct the next assessment, and the last is the structural factor, which is a factor outside the individual such as environment, culture, and social norms that greatly influence a person in perceiving something (Shambodo; 2020-101).

(Retiyanti Prestijo in Arifin, Fuady & Kuswarno; 2017-92) revealed that the factors that influence perception can be grouped into two main factors, namely internal factors which include experience, needs, assessments and expectations and external factors which include external appearance, the nature of the stimulus and the environmental situation. Meanwhile, Toha (2003) suggests the factors that influence a person's perception, the first is internal factors where these factors include feelings, attitudes and individual characteristics, prejudices, desires and expectations, focus, learning processes, physical conditions, mental disorders, values and beliefs. needs as well as interests and motivations. The second is external factors, which include family background, information obtained, knowledge and needs around, intensity, size, oppositeness, repetition of motion, new and familiar things or unfamiliarity of an object. From the statement above, it can be concluded that there are two main factors that influence a person's perception, namely factors from oneself and environmental factors.

2. Strategy

a. The Definition of Strategy

Etymologically, strategy comes from the Greek language, which means "military expertise". In a military environment, strategy describes the maneuvering of troops to a position before the position is in this position (Purmanto, 2006;74). Basically the term "strategy" is often used in the military, especially during wars to arrange tactics to achieve victory in the war. However, along with the times and the increase in knowledge strategy has entered all aspects of life, both in one's personal life in achieving success and the success of an organizational group. Every human activity if it wants its goals to be realized then all processes in achieving these goals must be considered and considered from the beginning of planning a strategy to implementing the strategy (Prasojo; 2018-1). So it can be concluded that the strategy is the way that individuals or groups do in the process to achieve a success or goal.

b. The Definition of Language Learning Strategies

Every learning process requires a manner or strategy to be adapted in order to achieve the main purpose of learning. Another term for methods of learning is learning strategies. Learning strategies are the methods students use to acquire information (Dembo ; 2004-13). Oxford (1990) defines learning strategies as “ specific actions taken by the learner to make learning easier, faster, more enjoyable, more self-directed, more effective and more transferable to new situations”. Additionally (O’Malley and Chamot;1990-43) defined learning strategies as “techniques and devices used by second language learners for remembering and organizing samples of the second language. One of the ways learners become actively involved in controlling their own learning is by using strategies. Strategies are the thoughts and behaviors that learners use to help them comprehend, learn or retain information”.

So from the theory above it can concluded that language learning strategies is the ways of language learners make learning easier, faster, enjoyable and more effective to achieve the main purpose of learning.

3. Social Media

a. Definition of Social Media

Social media is media in the form of sites and applications that involve internet-based technology (Triastuti, Andrianto & Nurul; 2017-16).

The term social media refers to the use of web and mobile-based technologies to turn communication into interactive dialogue. Social media is a superset that goes beyond social communication and is a medium for social interaction. Social media has been made possible by widely used and scalable communication methods. Significantly altered the ways in which organizations, communities talk each other. Social media has many distinct guises, formats such as publications, online discussions boards, weblogs, and Social wikis, podcast, wikis, blogs, microblogging, and video. This new form of media makes the transfer of text, photos, audio, video, and information in general increasingly fluid among internet users.

According to Tuten and Solomon (2015), “Social media are the online means of communication, conveyance, collaboration, and cultivation among interconnected and interdependent networks of people, communities, and organization enhanced by technological capabilities”. #### E. Social Media in English Language Teaching

Social media is essentially a form of media that allow users to share knowledge with others in a simple and organized manner using a variety of electrical and rechargeable devices, such as tablets, smartphones, and computers. It is typically employed for worldwide awareness and communication ( Kaplan, Andreas & Michael in Khan, Ayaz & Faheem ; 2016-591). The emergence of social media over the last decade has undoubtedly impact the way people around the world interact each other. These social media technologies have also caused a paradigm shift in education all over the world resulting in emphasis on new parameters in education. It is inevitable that this new generation of digital natives have certain expectations about the way they believe learning should be practiced and how it should involve to have social media as an integral part of this learning process ( Allam & Elyas ; 2016-1).

In the EFL context, the use of Social media provides some opportunities to develop students' English language skills. It is the fact that English is one of the languages that mostly used in Social media, because English is known as international language that is used all over the world to communicate each other.

English in Indonesia is used by people especially the students as the foreign language, where the students will get English in just certain places like school, courses, or universities as one of the available subjects in that places. English learners use their mobilephone in which Social media to communicate each other and they believe that mobile learning can facilitate them to learn anywhere and anytime (Ayuningtyas in Al Arif ; 2019-225). Students may use youtube for the subject-related materials and also utilize the eLearn's Blog, forum or wiki tools because of the subject requirements, or access facebook or other social media tools for their own process. Students were not only using Facebook formally for required course-related learning by peer interactions (students-students), but also informally for non-required course related matters. Except these students might have their own preference of the tools and access frequency for English learning ( Li ; 2017-149). The Social media help the students to improve their English skills from the content of the Social media that is more varied and this encourages students in English language learning using Social media (Al Arif ; 2019-231).

For students various types of Social media contents and communication can be learning media to practice English. The media can communicate cross geographical with everyone even with native. The advantages of the media is minimalizing of shyness such as verbal communication in English. Social media can be used for daily practicing to improve English skills ( Anwas, Sugiarti and Permatasari ; 2020-43).

Besides providing opportunities to develop students' English language skills, some ELT studies investigating Social media found out that Social media is a remedy for reducing students affective filters. It is also known as negative psychological factors such as anxiety, lack motivation, boredom and frustration, which have a substantial impact on students' language learning process (Zayed & Al-Ghamidi ;2019).

B. Previous Studies

The first research was conducted by Lesi Amiiroh, a Jambi University student in 2020. With the title "Students' Perceptions of the Use of Whatsapp Social Media in Online Learning During theCovid-19 Pandemic". This study aims to determine how students' perceptions of the use of WhatsApp social media in online learning in the future Covid-19 pandemic. This type of research is descriptive qualitative which describes students' perceptions of the use of social media WhatsApp on online learning. The data collection techniques in this study used questionnaires and interviews. The data in this study is a description of students' perceptions of the use of WhatsApp social media in online learning during the Covid-19 pandemic. The data sources in this study were students who were using WA in online learning. The results of the research and discussion show that students' perceptions vary different but have the same core to the use of WhatsApp on Android online learning, both on features that are often used, features that want to use, the advantages and disadvantages of using WhatsApp, to suggestions to the teacher.

The difference between this research and the present research is that this research only focuses on one social media, namely WhatsApp, while in the present research it will cover all social media, while the research similarities are both to describe students' perceptions of the use of social media for learning.

The second related study was done by AlShoabi & Shukri (2017) entitled "Foundation Year Students' Perceptions of Using Social Network Sites for Learning English in the Saudi Context." The major aim of this study is to better understand the university students' perceptions and attitudes towards using social network sites for learning English as well as to identify if there is a difference between male and female university students in terms of using social networking sites for learning English inside and outside the classroom. The study also attempts to identify the social networking sites that are most frequently used by male and female university students in order to learn English. The participants of this study were 20 female and male foundation year students at King Abdul Aziz University in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. The tool of the study was a questionnaire. The finding of this study showed that male students had positive perceptions and attitudes toward using social network sites for learning English more than female students who had negative perceptions and attitudes. The results also showed that YouTube website was the most frequently used social network site for learning English by male students while the majority of the female students did not have any favorite social network sites because they did not use social network sites for learning English.

The difference between this research and the present research is this research used a qualitative methods while in present research used an explanatory sequential mix method research. The similarities is to knowing students' perceptions of using Social media for learning English.

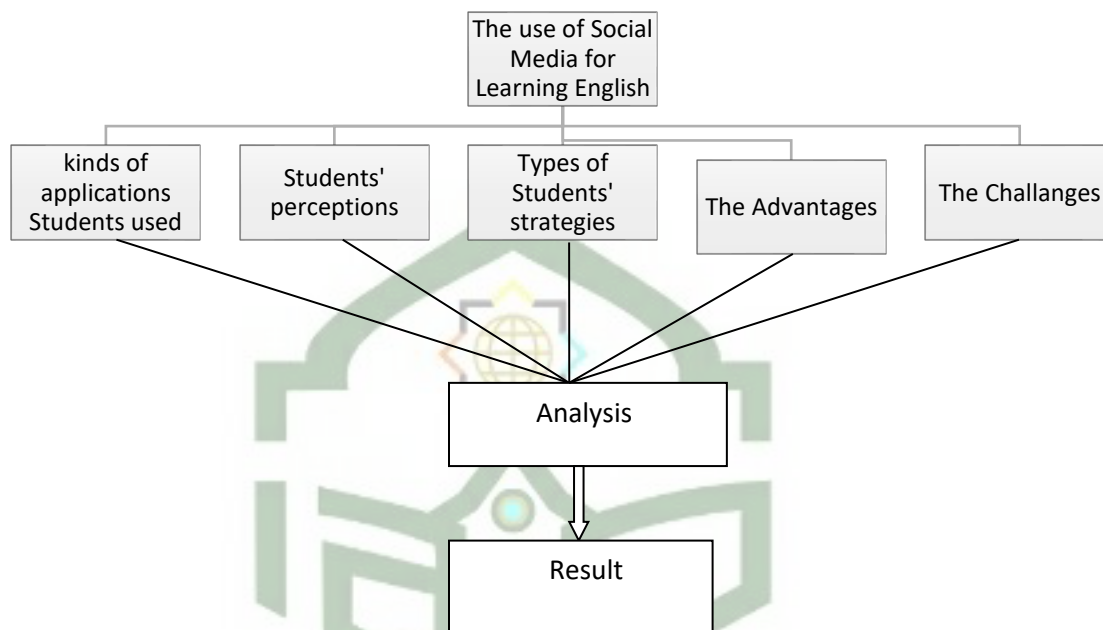

The third related study was done by Tubagus Zam Zam Al Arif (2019) entitled "The Use of Social Media for English Language Learning: An Exploratory Study of EFL University Students." This study aimed to examine the use of social media in English language learning. The researcher used exploratory study to investigate the use of social media for English language learning. The participants of this study were sixty-seven students of English department program at Jambi University. Questionnaire and semi-structured interview were conducted to gather the data. The researcher analyzed the data from questionnaires using basic statistical analysis, and the data from interviews were analyzed using phenomenological case analysis combined with coding thematically. The result revealed that some social media applications especially Instagram and Facebook are mostly used by the students. Accordingly, the students spent more time in using social media for general purposes than English learning purposes. Nevertheless, they still showed positive attitudes towards the use of social media in English language learning.

The difference between this research and the present research is this research used an exploratory research methods while in present research used an explanatory sequential mix method research. The similarities is to knowing students' perceptions of using Social media for learning English.

C. Conceptual Framework

Based on the framework above, this research is conducted to knowing The use of social media for learning English. This aims to find out what applications students use, students' perceptions and types of strategies they used for learning English on social media as well as the advantages and challenges of social media for learning English. By knowing students' perceptions of the use of social media for learning English as well as the advantages and challenges that students perceived and their type of learning strategies on social media, we can analyse what students' perceived and how students develop their English skills through social media. Furthermore the educators also may create such a creative learning media by knowing

The use of social media for learning English and apply in the classroom learning Englishwithsocialmedia.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

A. Research Design

This research used an Explanatory Sequential Mix Method Design. According to Creswell (2014) The explanatory sequential mix methods involves a two-phase project in which the researcher collect quantitative data in the first phase, analyzes the results, and then uses the result to plan (or build on to) the second, qualitative phase. The research involved collecting survey data in first phase, analyzing the data, and following up with qualitative interviews to help explain the survey responses.

Mix method is chosen because this study aims to find out students perceptions and strategies of the use of Social media for learning English, including the kinds of applications they use, which applications they use the most as well as the advantages and challenges they face of using Social media. At the first phase the researcher used survey to collect the information about the students who use social media for learning English and which applications they use the most. After gained the information from survey, the researcher interviewed some students who use Social media for learning English to know their perceptions and strategies as well as the advantages and challenges of social media for learning English.

B. Research Setting

This research was conducted at IAIN Kerinci, which is located in the city of Sungai Penuh, Jambi Province. The researcher conducted the research at the Faculty of Education and Teacher Training, specifically on third year English department students.

C. Participants

1. Quantitative :The quantitative part involved 36 students of the third year of English Education program at State Islamic Institute of Kerinci in Academic year 2022-2023 to answer the survey questionnaire.
2. Qualitative : The qualitative part involved 5 purposively selected participants who based on the survey :
  - a)Had social media
  - b) Used The Social media for learning English

D. Techniques of Data Collection

Data collecting technique explain the way researcher used to gather the data related to the focus of the research. In this study two instruments were used for gaining data as follow:

1. Quantitative

In quantitative the researcher used survey to collect the information. A “survey” is systematic method for collecting information for the purposes of constructing quantitative descriptors (Groves, et al., ; 2009-1). This study used questionnaire to gain the information relate students that using social media and using social media for learning English as well as what applications of social media they use the most and their behaviors of using social media for learning English.

Questionnaire is a data collection technique that is done by giving a set of questions to get the information from participants (Sugiyono ; 2020-199). The questionnaires contained close-ended questions. Close-ended questioners is use to collect the responses from the participants that mostly likely represent their view ( Sinicalco & Auriat ; 2005).

First, the participants are asked to fill their personal information including name, gender, class, and Whatsapp number. Next students are asked to answer several questions relate to their behaviors of using social media for learning English.

2. Qualitative

In qualitative the researcher used interview to collect the information. Interview is a data collection technique by way of interviewing selected individuals as a respondent. The interview mostly used if the researcher wants to know from the respondents something in deeply and the number of respondents is small (Sugiyono ; 2020-195). Furthermore, it is a direct face to face attempt to obtain reliable and valid measures in the form of verbal responses from one or more respondents.

In this research, semi-structured interview are chosen as an interview method. This method allows new questions to appear because of the answers given by the respondents (Alijoyo, Wijaya & Jacob ; 2017-1). The researcher chosen this type of interview because the questions can be developed base on the participants' answers and their current situation. Interview is apply in collecting the data about students' perceptions and strategies of using social media for learning English as well the advantages and challenges of Social media.

E. Research Instruments

1. Questionnaire

Questionnaire is a data collection technique that is done by giving a set of questions to get the information from participants (Sugiyono ; 2020-199). The questionnaires contained close-ended questions. Close-ended questioners is use to collect the responses from the participants that mostly likely represent their view ( Sinicalco & Auriat ; 2005).

In this research, the researcher adopted questionnaire by Muetia Safitri (2021). The questionnaire have 6 items which consisted students' behaviors of using social media (see Appendix I)

2. Interview guide

An interview guide is a document that enables organizations to structure the way they conduct their participant interviews. It helps interviewers to know what to ask about in and in what order and it ensures a participant experience that same to others (Neelie Verlinden, The Interview Guide: 7 Key Elements, 2022, <https://www.aihr.com>). The interview guide has eight items that will be apply in interview session.

In this research, the researcher adopted interview guide by Arif (2019) Because the interview guideline by Arif (2019) could help the researcher to find the data.. The interview guide have 8 items which consisted what social media that can help students to enhance their English skills, their perception and strategies as well as the advantages and challenges students perceived of using social media for learning English (see Appendix II).

F. Techniques of Data Analysis

1. Quantitative

In quantitative the researcher aim to find the applications of social media that the students use, and the applications that they use for learning English. The quantitative data from quetionnaire was analyzed using descriptive statistics through frequency and percentage. The percentage was copied from Google form result. Then the researcher interpreted the data on the table.

2. Qualitative

The qualitative data from interview analyzed by using thematic analysis by Miles & Huberman. According to Miles & Huberman (1994)analysis can be define as consisting three current flows of activity that is data reduction, data display, and conclusion drawing/verification.:

1.) Data Reduction

Data reduction refers to the process of selecting, focusing, simplifying, abstracting, and transforming the data in written up field note or transcript.

2.) Data Display

Generally a display is an organized, compressed, assembly of information that permits conclusion drawing and action.

3.) Conclusion Drawing

Final thing is conclusion drawing. Conclusion also verified as the analysis proceeds. Verifications may be as a brief fleeting second thought crossing the analyst' mind during writing, with a short excursion back to the field notes, or it may be through and elaborate, with lengthy argumentations and review among colleagues to develop "Intersubjective consensus," or with extensive efforts to replicate a finding in another data set.

G. Trustworthiness

1. Triangulation

Triangulation is the process of comparing information from several sources using interview and document data. Additionally, data from diverse informants will be examined. According to William Triangulation is a technique of checking the validity of the data that can take advantage of the other sources than the data for checking purposes or as a comparison to the data obtained from data collection techniques ( Sugiyono, 2020)

The method of triangulation the researcher will employ is source triangulation, whereby the researcher will compare the findings with key informants that the researcher has chosen in order to ensure the accuracy of the data.

2. Member Checking

Member checking is testing the possibility of different conjectures and developing tests to check the analysis, by applying them to the data, and by asking questions about the data. The purpose of member check is to determine the suitability of the data provided by the data source (Anggraeni & Suryono ; 2013).

Member check will carry out after a period of data collection is complete, or after getting a conclusion. After the data is mutually agreed, then the data will be given and asked to sign, to be more authentic.

3. Observation Extension

Extension of observation is an activity carried out by the researchers in which researchers return to the field to observe data sources that have been encountered. With the extension of this observation, the relationship between the researcher and the resources will be closer, more open, trusting each other so that no information is hidden anymore (Sugiyono, 2020).

Observation Extension will carry out after a period of time when the data collection is complete. This aims to make sure the credibility of data.
