CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

A. Background of the problems

English is an international language that is used by many people in the world use it as a medium of communication (Puspitasari ; 2016-200); . Moreover, English as a key role in globalization era because with English skill we will to know a lot of thing in the world. For example, economics, politics, culture, communication, and education. Especially for education, English language becomes the first foreign language that is taught to the students of every level of education in Indonesia. English is taught as a compulsory subject in junior high school and senior high school, and it is one of the requirements to pass the national exam.

Although English is a foreign language in indonesia, it is very important for students. Therefore, English as one of the main subjects in Junior High School has function as a developing instrument for the students in technology, knowledge, and culture. So, they are ready to take a part in national development.

The purpose of teaching English in Indonesia is to develop the communication skills especially in oral and written skills (Writing, Reading, Listening, and Speaking). To know about the student's abilities in the teaching-learning process, the teachers need to hold an evaluation.

In education, evaluation plays an important role in any activity. In English teaching , the assessment provides information about the success of the effort.

The information obtained believes that this assessment is very useful for the future improvements. The evaluation believes that teaching and examination are like two sides of a coin, inseparable.

According to Norman, “Assesment is a systematic process to determine the extent to which students reach their teaching purposes” (Gronlund, dkk ; 1990-5); One of the ways to make an assesment is to pass test. This test can measure the ability of students. A test is a short examination of knowledge or ability, including questions that must be answered or activities that must be performed (Hornby ; 1995-1233).

Based on the 2013 curriculum Muhammad Nuh as Ministry of Education at the time, he said that asserted that 2013 curriculum designed as an attempt to prepare the future generation in 2045, 100 years independent of Indonesia and also utilizing the numerous productive age in 2045 to be a demographic bonus. In its implementation, the curriculum change gets the pros and cons in society. One of the problems that occur was the teacher preparation to face it. Nevertheless, government continues to implement the change of 2013 curriculum by reason quality education improvement.

The curriculum 2013, Ministry Of education (Permendiknas) Chapter 71 decree on curriculum aims to prepare the Indonesian generation and enable them to live in society, nation, country, and civilization. Therefore, based on the 2013 curriculum above, we know that the curriculum plays an important role in progress of education, and the curriculum helps all problems in education, including proper and correct guidelines. In order to obtain good results, tests that must meet good criteria : namely validity, reliability and usability (Tinambunan ; 1988-12). At this time, the researcher only focuses on the content validity because the researcher wants to compare the test with the syllabus.

In order to achieve the goals of the English course, the researcher believe that the test is a tool that can be used to gather information about the advantages and disadvantages of accepting students courses. The teacher is someone who knows the characteristics of their class. Therefore, they are most suitable for constructing test items to test student performance. This is not an easy task, because the teachers must know good test qualifications.

According to Drs. Wilmar Tinambunan, “Validity, reliability and usability are important factors that are usually considered in test evaluation. The next important thing is whether the test is consistent and accurate” (Tinambunan ; 1988-11). Well done testing can help teachers increase the teaching process. High-quality test items can provide information about the teacher’s appropriate level of understanding of the material. There are some tests. One of them is the achievement test.

From the results of preliminary observations, interviews and reading several journals from previous research. The researcher found a problem, that there were test that were not by the syllabus indicators and do not have good contents validity of achievement test, because the current curriculum used was the new curriculum, namely K13, so the suitability was not known. Then it is very rare to analyze the items done by students, whether each item matches the assessment indicators in the syllabus or not. This is inseparable from the current conditions, namely the pandemic period that has passed almost one year of learning, so learning is carried out online. Online learning takes place from home without a face-to-face process. So that we do not know what difficulties teachers or students experience in the online learning process and how the online learning process is carried out. From this impact, test in the school were also carried out in online.

Based on the background above, the researcher is interest in analyzing the content validity of English summative test focus on writing and reading. Because, the researcher get the data that content of summative test are multiple choice and essay. For this analysis, the researcher gives title “AN ANALYSIS OF THE CONTENT VALIDITY OF ENGLISH ACHIEVEMENT TEST BASED ON THE SYLLABUS FOR THE SEVEN GRADE OF JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL 16 KERINCI ACADEMIC YEAR 2020/2021”.

B. Identification of the Problem

Based on the identification of the problems in the background of the study, researcher identified some problems :

- 1.) There are problems on the test not match the indicator in the syllabus.
- 2.) There are problems on most of the questions items written by the teachers for summative test which are inappropriate with the characteristic of a good test.

- 3.) A test, which does not have content validity, complicates the students to answer the test questions.

C. The Limitation of the Problem

The researcher limits this paper on the analysis on content validity of English summative test in The seven grade of Junior High School 16 Kerinci based on the syllabus. Especially, The research focused on the multiple choice items and essay items. The test to be analyzed is the English achievement test for the first grade junior high school 16 Kerinci academic year 2020/2021.

D. Research Question

Based on limitation of the problem, the researcher was formulated the problem in the question below:

1. Does the English achievement test for the seven grade students of junior high school 16 Kerinci have high quality on content validity ?
2. Does the English achievement test for the seven grade students of junior high school 16 Kerinci have suitability based on the indicator of syllabus ?

E. Purpose of The Research

The objective of the study was to find empirical evidence if the test items of English summative test carried out at the seven grade of junior high school 16 Kerinci have high quality on the content validity and in line the school based syllabus.

F. The Significance of the Study

The result of this study was expected to give a description for the readers about an analysis of the content validity toward the achievement test. The researcher also hopes this paper can give meaningful input for teachers of English in developing test items that have content validity. Besides, the result of the study is hoped to enrich the teachers' knowledge of English achievement test and it can be used as a reference for the next researchers who are interested in developing similar study. Especially, for researcher, would understand and capable to make a high quality of test items.

G. Defenition of The Key Terms

In order to avoid misunderstanding towards the terms used in this study some definitions of key terms will present as follows:

1. Test

Test is a procedure or a standardized device to measure the students' achievement in acquiring knowledge about the subject after teaching-learning process and one of the ways to measure the goal of achieving the learning objective with systematic procedure (Puspitasari ; 2016-203).

2. Achievement Test

An achievement tests are usually a formal examination given at the end of the school year or at the end of the course. The achievement tests may be written and administered by ministries of education, official examining boards, or by members of teaching institution (Djiwandono ; 91 ).

3. Content Validity

Content validity ensures that the measurement includes an adequate and representative set of items that reveal the concept. The more scale items reflect the area or the entire concept being measured, the greater the content validity

4. Syllabus

A syllabus is a reference of the courses that used by the teacher as a guideline for conducting the teaching and learning process. A syllabus should be developed by each school that conforms to schools' vision, situation, and mission ( Badan Standar Nasional Pendidikan ; 2006-14 ).

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Review Related Theories

1. Test

a. The Definition of Test

Testing is an aspect that can not be separated from the learning and teaching process. They are so closely linked and it is impossible to work in any one field without caring about each other. Before during, or in the final process of learning and teaching, teacher uses tests as instrument tools. In education, testing is very important because it is an educational means to obtain information on student performance and understand the degree to which learning goals are achieved.

By taking the test, the teachers will know how deeply the student has studied the material taught, and know the students' behavioral form and characteristic. According to Linn and Grounlund, test is particular type of assessment that typically consist of a set of question administered during a fixed period of time under reasonably, comparable conditions for all students ( Puspitasari ; 2016-203). Linn and Groundlund also explained; a test is a set of questions, and each questions has a correct answer, usually in oral or written form ( Puspitasari ; 2016-203) . According to Desmond Allison the test is a formal assessment that has been formally arrange and scheduled officially and has been limited by the available guidance. ( Allison ; 1999-5)

Based on the above definitions , the reseacher can conclude that the test is a procedure or a standardized means used to measure the students' achievement in obtaining knowledge about the subject after teaching-learning process and it is a way to measure the goal of achieving the learning goal one has a systematic program.

b. The Type of Test

Teacher not only constructs a test to measure the testers' understanding of the materials, but also to know where the testers encountered difficulties, to know the effectiveness of the teaching method used in the classroom and so on. Wilmar Tinambunan has two types of tests that can be used to determine a person's abilities: aptitude test and achievement test (Tinambunan ; 1988). An aptitude test is mainly used to predict the success of certain learning activity in the future and achievement test is designed to indicate the degree of success in certain past learning activities. The main purpose of testing in the classroom is to measure the students performance, in order to illustrate the progress of the educational goals set for the student.

According to Mary and Sake, the kinds of basic types of language tests are achievement tests, proficiency tests, diagnostic tests, and aptitude tests ( Sake ; 1992 204-207 ).

1) Achievement test.

Achievement test, like most other subjects, Achievement-type or attainment tests are widely used in language teaching. They are used to measure the amount and degree of control of discrete language and cultural items and comprehensive language skills that students have mastered during a specific teaching period of a specific course.

2) Proficiency test.

The language proficiency test is designed to measure the control ability and communication skills of the language or cultural items that existed at the time of the test, and has nothing to do with formal training. This type of test usually used for a specific course, determine the appropriate entry level in the course or advanced training course, and determine whether the candidate is ready to perform a specific task in work activities.

3) Diagnostic test.

The Diagnostic language test is designed to determine the specific strengths and weakness of foreign language students. It may contain the same types of test items as achievement or ability tests.

4) Aptitude test.

The aptitude test is considered a prognostic indicator, which indicates whether it is possible for a student to learn a second language easily. It is usually given before students start language learning, and can be used to select students who want to study a language course, or to arrange students in a part that suits their abilities.

From all those types of the test above, it can be conclude that the test is a problem it solves the problem of education. The teacher or tester can manage the test according to his or her goals. When the teacher wants to determine the level of reaching the teaching goal, he/she can use the summary test, when the teacher wants to monitor the learning to make progress in the teaching process at the same time, she/he can use formative testing, and when the teacher wants to provide information, it can help them put students in the stage of the teaching plan that best suits their problem-solving skills.

c. Type of Test Item

There are 12 kinds of test item, such as; questions and answers, multiple-choice, Essay, True/False, Matching, gap-filling and completion, cloze, translation, transformation, rewriting, dictation, and monologue.

The tests are supported by Penny Ur that there are 12 kinds of test item :

1) Questions and Answers

Simple questions, very often following reading, or as part of an interview; may require short or long answers.

Example :

What is the (family) relationship between David Copperfield and Mr. Murdstone?

The test must to complete a sentence by filling a gap or adding something. A gap may or may not be signaled by a blank or dash; the word to be inserted may or may not be given or hinted at.

Example : She (goes) to Canada in 2010

She.....to Canada in 2010.

7) Cloze

Submit Words from a passage at text regular intervals (for example, every seven words). Usually there is no gap in the first two or three rows.

Example:

The family is all fine, though Leo had a bad bout of flu last week. He spent most of it lying on the sofa watching when he wasn't sleeping!

8) Translation

The test is asked to translate expressions, sentences or entire passages to or from the target language.

9) Transformation

A sentence is given; the testee has to change it according to some given instruction. Example: Put into the past tense: I go to school by bus.

10) Rewriting

A sentence is given; the testee rewrites it, incorporating a given change of expression, but preserving the basic meaning.

Example : He came to the meeting in spite of his illness. Although...

11) Dictation

The test dictates a paragraph or group of words; the testee writes them down. This is mainly a tests of spelling, perhaps punctuation, and, perhaps surprisingly on the face of it, listening comprehension: people usually only write words down accurately from dictation if they understand them. It does not, however, test other writing skills or speech, and hardly involves reading.

12) Monologue

The test is given a topic or question and asked to speak about it for a minute or two . This tests oral fluency in 'long turns'- something not everyone can do in their mother tongue. It also tests overall knowledge of pronunciation, grammar and vocabulary.

It shows that the test consists of 12 kinds of test items. Those are questions and answers, true/false, essay, multiple choice, etc.

d. Achievement Test

As the name suggests, the purpose of the achievement test is to determine the degree of success of a single student, a group of students, or the course itself in achieving language course goals (Arthur;1995-10).

According to McNamara (2000), an achievement test is an instrument of evaluation which purpose is directly related to the teaching and learning process that serves as a powerful making decision tool and support to reach learning outcomes during or at the end of a course study. Achievement tests are usually a formal examinations taken at the end of the school year or at the end of the course. Achievement test can be written and administered by members of the ministry of Education, official examination committees or teaching institutions (Gavilanez,2017-299);.

1) The Construction of an Achievement Test

There are four things in to build of an achievement test. As Louis J. Karmel said, building an achievement test requires careful analysis of the area to be checked.

- 2) The reason for the construction of the instrument must be clearly and obvious.
- 3) Provides a detailed and clear overview of the topics to be used.
- 4) The reasons for the construction and an outline of the content are reviewed by experts such as classroom teachers, educators, and test makers.
- 5) compose test items for each part of the content outline, and then ask representative educators to comment on their importance, clarity of expression, and representativeness the theme (Karmel, ; 1970-2);.

It can be seen that the construction of an achievement test is contained in four areas that need to be examined.

e. Basic Principles of Achievement Testing

In order to have a good performance of achievement test form, tester should consider that they must construct a good performance test by paying attention to the following basic principle. Wilmar Tinambunan said in his book that the following performance principles of achievement testing provide a solid foundation for constructing and using classroom test as a positive force in the teaching learning process.

- 1) Achievement test should measure clearly defined learning outcomes that are consistent with the teaching goals.
- 2) Achievement test should measure a sufficient sample of the learning outcomes and subject content included in the teaching.
- 3) Achievement tests should include the types of test items that are most suitable for measuring expected learning outcomes.
- 4) Achievement tests should be designed to suit the specific use of the results.
- 5) Achievement test should be made as reliable as possible and then it should be interpreted with caution.
- 6) Achievement test should be used to improve student learning (Tinambunan ;1988-28-35);.

It shows that the basic principles of achievement testing are contained in six analyses to be examined.

2. Types of Achievement Test

Wilmar Tinambunan said that there are many types of tests used to measured student performance. According to its function, teachers in classroom usually use four kinds of achievement tests, namely placement test, formative test, diagnostic test, and summative test ( Tinambunan ; 1988 ).

a. Placement Tests

To determine the students performance at the beginning of teaching, placement test is used. As Norman E. Gronlund said, placement evaluation is to determine student performance at the beginning of teaching process ( Gronlund ; 1990-38 ).

The Placement test is designed to divide new students into teaching groups, so that they can start a cursing at approximately the same level as the other students in the class. It is related to the current status of the student, and therefore related to general abilities rather than specific learning points. Often, results need to be obtained quickly in order to start teaching ( Harison ; 2007-4).

The goal of placement evaluation is to determine the most beneficial teaching sequence and position in the teaching mode for the students ( Gronlund ; 1990-38 ).

b. Formative Tests

Formative test is used at the end of textbook unit or after designed course. Formative evaluation is the monitoring learning progress during the teaching process. Its purpose is to provide students and teachers with continuous feedback on learning successes and failure ( Miller ; 1998-38 ).

Formative evaluation depends to a large extent on tests, specially prepared for each teaching part (e.g., unit, chapter) ( Gronlund ; 1990- 39).

c. Diagnostic Tests

Diagnostic evaluation is to diagnose learning difficulties in the teaching process ( Gronlund ; 1990-39 ). Diagnostic test checks the student's progress in learning spesific elements of the course. for example it is used at the end of a unit in the course book or after a course designed to teach a certain point. The diagnostic test attempts to answer the following question: 'How well the students learning about these specific materials?' Since it relates to spesific elements in the course which have just been taught, the assessment will provide immediate feedback to the students ( Harison ; 6 ).

Diagnostic evaluation focuses on continuous or recurring learning difficulties that are not resolved by the standard corrective methods of formative evaluation. The main aim of diagnostic evaluation is to determine the causes of persistent learning problems and to formulate a plan for remedial action ( Gronlund ; 1990- 38 ).

d. Summative Tests

Summative evaluation is to evaluate achievement at the end of instruction ( Gronlund ; 1990- 40). Summative evaluation typically comes at the end of a course (or unit) of instruction. It is designed to determine the degree of achievement of teaching and mainly used to assign course grades or to prove students' mastery of expected learning outcomes. Although the main purpose of summative evaluation is to score, or prove student performance, it also provides information for judging the appropriateness of course objectives and the effectiveness of teaching ( Gronlund ; 1990- 42).

The results show that there are four type of achievement. Those are placement test, formative test, diagnostic test, and summative test. The standardized of achievement test is constructed clearly explain the reasons and goals behind the instrument. It involves a detailed and clear outline of the subject matter to be tested. In order to have a good achievement test form, a test maker should consider that achievement test must be constructed well by paying attention to some following basic principles.

There are many types of test used to measure students' performance. although teachers usually conduct many tests in the classroom, they can be used based on their functions. The researcher only introduce one of them which directly related to the analysis written in this paper. It is a summative test.

3. The Characteristic of a Good Test

Qualities of a test should be considered in preparing and using foreign language test. The test which was made by tester or teacher must be good, thus a test must have some characteristics which should be paid attention, and they are: validity, reliability, comprehensiveness and practicality ( Sake ; 2007-28 ).

Wiersma & G.Jurs explains, “Validity is the extent to which a test measures what is intended to measure, whether it be achievement, aptitude or proficiency in the language ( Sake ; 2007-28 ).” It means that a test is designed to measure the discrete items of a language. For example, if it is intended to measure a students' ability to speak the language, it is valid only in speaking skill, not writing or anything else that is not intended to predict.

Based on the statements above, the researcher can conclude that if the test measured, then the test is valid. Each test should be as effective as possible teacher can make it. The test must aim to provide a true picture of the specific skill it is designed to measure. For a more detailed explanation of validity, the researcher will discuss it in next subchapter.

The second characteristic of a good test is reliability. Heaton states that "reliability is an essential feature of any good test: for it to be valid at all, the test must first be reliable as a measuring instrument. If 12 candidates are tested on different occasions, then in term of the different results of its procedure, it is reliable.

While Mary Finocchiaro and Sydney Sake states, Reliability or stability of a language test is concerned with the degree to which it can be trusted to produce the same result upon repeated administration to the same individual or to give consistent information about the value of a learning variable being measured ( Sake ; 2007-28). Therefore, to be considered reliable, language tests must obtain consistent result and provide consistent information. From the statement above, it can be inferred that reliability is a measure of consistency of score when the same person performs takes the same test under different conditions.

The last characteristic of good test is practicality. “The practicality of a language test is further determined by its ease of scoring. Test which are difficult to score become a burden for the scorer and are unduly demanding of personnel, time and resources ( Sake ; 2007-28 ).” In other words, practicality refers to the practicality of the evaluation program, including economics, interpretability and convenience aspect.

From the some explanations above, it can be concludes that the test must have some characteristics should be paid attention; validity, reliability, and practicality. Validity is wether the test results are consistent, and test practicality is whether the test is easy to do, easy to do correctly and clearly expalined. The researcher will not explain all the characteristics of good test; therefore it is only about validity. It is because should be confirmed by the title of this research.

4. Validity

From the previous explanation, one of the characteristics of a good test is validity. According to Wilmar ( Tinambunan ; 1988 ), validity refers to the extent to which the result of the evaluation process serve a specific purpose, if the results are used to describe a student’s pupil performance. Thus, the validity of attest is the extent to which the test measure what is intended to measure. Although Heaton pointed out that the validity of a test is to degree to which it measure what it should measure not anything else ( Heaton ; 2000 ). These statements mean that the validity of a test must be considered in measurement. in this case, it is necessary to briefly check whether the test used actually measures what should be measured.

According to Charles Alderson, validity is divided into three types: rational, empirical and construct validity. Rational validation depend on a logical analysis of the test's content to see whether the test contain a preventative sample of the relevant language skill. Empirical validation, depend on and statistical evidence as to whether students' mark on the test similar to their scores on other tests, their self assessment or the teacher' rating of their ability. Construct validation refers on what the test scores actually mean( Alderson , dkk ; 1995-171 ). Different statement comes from Hughes. He divided validity into four types, these are : content validity, face validity, construct validity, and criterion-related validity.

The first content validity, Content validity is concerned with whether or not the content of the test is sufficiently and comprehensive for the test to be valid measure of what it is supposed to measure ( sake, dkk ; 2007-25 ). The objective of the course are based on the curriculum development by government, so the examiners should understand whether the test has content validity, the examiner should check the the curriculum objective and the materials of test. The content validity will be discussed in more detail in the next sub-chapter.

According to Norman E. Gronlund ( Grounlund ; 1982-67 ) content validity is the process of determining the extent to which a set of tasks provides a relevant and representative sample of domain of tasks under consideration. the researcher can conclude that content validity is the extent to which the test content represents the relevant subject matter, substance, or subject that has been designed for measurement.

Second, Face validity. Face validity is an attribute of a test designed to measure something ( Harris ; 1988-21 ). This is the effectiveness of the test on the surface. In other words,if a test appears to measure what it is supposed to measure, it can be said to have face validity.

Face validity refers to the shape and appearance of the instruments. According to Djamaludin Ancok from Arikunto, it is very important to measure personal abilities, such as the measurement of honesty, intelligence, talent and skills. Moreover, Heaton defines “If a test item looks right to other testers, teachers, moderators, and testers, it can be described as having at least face validity” ( Heaton ; 1988-159 ).

From the definition above, the researcher assumes that face validity means the test appearance, which is readable, acceptable, and appropriate with what supposed to test. Third classifications of validity are construct validity. Difficulty and examination students must pass structural validity. Arthur Hughes pointed out that if it can be proven that a test, or a test technique measures only an ability or trait, it is called structural validity ( Hughes ; 31 ). which is hypothesized in a theory of language ability. One might hypothesize, for example, that the ability to read includes a number of sub-abilities, such as ability to find out the main idea of a text. Construct validity is construction of a test itself from theoretical framework about behavior derived from the empirical investigation that suggests positively correlate with the scores of the other test designed to measure the same behavior ( Swerderlik , dkk ; 183 ).

The last category of validity is standard validity. The standard validity of a test relates to the relationship or correlation between test scores and the scores of several measures that represent the identified standard ( Wiersma ; 1990-193 ). For example, standard metrics can be another test. Correlation coefficient can be calculated between the validated test scores and the standard scores. The correlation coefficient used in this way is called the validity coefficient. There are two different types of standard validity, namely concurrent validity and predictive validity ( Wiersma ; 1990-194 ) .

if data on the two measures-tests (comparing of the test scores with several other measure of the same candidate is done at approximately the same time as the test) and criterion data are collected at or about the same time, The data valid at the same time. Predictive validity applies if there is an intervening period between the time of testing and the collection of data on the criterion.

5. Content Validity

From the previous explanation, we are already know that one of categories of validity is content validity. Content validity is an important aspect of design testing. The most important thing to pay attention to when preparing for the test is the content validity, followed by the sample questions ( Phopam ; 1998-19 ). This means that the test designer must first prepare the content validity before proceeding to produce the test project.

Content validity is also called course validity, because the test materials is based on curriculum. As Gareis and Grand explained, the content validity concerned with how far an assessment is in line with the intended learning outcomes, standards, or goals of teaching unit ( Gareis , dkk ; 2008-37 ). Therefore, If there is no content validity in the test for the students, there will be consequences, including: the students cannot demonstrate their skills, and if that irrelevant items appear, students may just give wrong answers because there is no teaching content ( Wiersman ; 1990-185 ).

In addition, according to the book Testing English as a Second Language written by David P. Harris, “If the test aims to measure degree of mastery of specific skills or specific course content, we should expect the test to be based based on a careful analysis of the course skills or syllabus ( Harris ; 19 ).” According to Evaluation, there are two methods in teaching of individual instructional education ( Wiersman ; 1990-43 ). Prove the validity of the content of the test. the first method is to list all the specific goals you want to achieve. then match with the items to see whether the items really meets the relevant objectives. The second method is by constructing a table to classify the items’ content and taxonomic level, that is, student outcome required on the item.

In addition, for making sure that a test has conformity between the subject matter with the learning outcomes or the test has good content validity, there are three steps which should be done. First, the test designer should determine the subject matter and result of the students to be measure. Then he/she should make a test specifications sheet. Finally, he/she should construct a test that conforms to the table ( Grounlund ; 1990-127 ).

The above process is called the varification process. This content validation process based on language teaching method, material, given, and the goals. Furthermore, in establishing content validity in a test, the test designer should determine what she/he wants to be measured clearly ( Brown ; 1996-177 ).

If the test does not have content validity, it will cause some problem. The first problem is that students cannot demonstrate their skills which they have but which are not tasted. The second problem is the students will not answer correctly the items because there is no relevancy between the items with the materials that have been taught ( Wiersman ; 1990-184 ).

6. Construct Validity

Construct validity is one of the principle that plays an important role in the validation process of the test to determine the level of usefulness of this tool of evaluation. According to weir (1990); Alderson et al. (1995), one of the relevant types of validity is construct validity due to its characteristic to gather evidence to support the contentation that a given test indeed measures what is claimed to measure.

The term “construct validity” makes reference when the candidate’s knowledge is inferred through the results of a test in which the test tasks are clearly deigned according to the nature of the construct to be measured and such inferences depend on language theoretical hypotheses that need to be justified to give validity to the ( Bachman & Palmer,1996). In short the test tasks are verified to see if they measure the target language skill and sub skill in order to determine its validity and comparison between the test tasks and the theory is one of the ways to assess the construct validity of the test

In other words, the construct validity of a test is determined by the evidence obtained through the study of the influence of several factors that contribute to the general score interpretation as an indicator of the ability or structure to be measured ( Gavilanez ; 2017-301 ).

7. Curriculum and Syllabus

a. Curriculum

Curriculum is the basic standard or goal that guides the success of the teaching process. As Roger and Christopher said, a course is a written document or plan that contains strategies to achieve the desired goals ( Brumpit, dkk ; 1991-1 ). In addition, the curriculum also includes the scope, sequence and methods of the teaching process.

Moreover, “Curicullum is the content, standars or goal that the school requires students to be responsible. Others claim that the curriculum is a set of teaching strategies that teachers plan use ( Posner ; 2004-5).” The curriculum has four goals based Richards; they will clearly define the purpose of the plan, provide guidance for teachers, learners, and material writers, help provide teaching priorities, and describe important and achievable changes in teaching ( Richards ; 2001-120 ).

According to UU RI no 20 tahun 2003 ( UU RI ; 2003 ) :
“kurikulum adalah sebuah rencana dan pengaturan dalam pembuatan tentang isi, tujuan, dan bahan pelajaran yang digunakan sebagai pedoman dalam penyelenggaraan pembelajaran untuk mencapai tujuan pendidikan”
(curriculum is defined as all planned of learning includes the objectives, content and materials used as a guide to achieve the objective of the instruction of educational institution). The researcher concludes that curriculum is a written document which describes objectives, goals, scope and sequences, and systems as a guideline for implementing the teaching-learning process.

b. Syllabus

The syllabus is a reference of the courses that used by the teacher as a guideline for conducting the teaching and learning process. Every school should develop a syllabus that conforms to the school vision, situation, and mission. It relates to an operational curriculum or 2013 curriculum which gives school an authority for developing the syllabus.

The Government also states that syllabus is a set of plan which covers standard competence, minimum standard competence, materials, activities, indicator, scoring, time allocation, and media. Therefore, the syllabus is a plan or reference used by teachers to guide a teaching-learning process of a program and it includes eight elements, such as standard competence, materials, minimum standard competence, indicator, activities, time allocation, scoring, and media.

The component that the researcher will be used in analyzing the content validity is the indicators from the syllabus, because it is the real form of minimum standard competence that is used for measuring student's behavior, skills, and knowledge. In addition, it has to be covered in teaching-learning process.

C. Review of Related Findings

Previous researchers have conducted relevant research in analyzing the content validity of the English summative test. Researchers conducted four related studies from Suminar, Dewi, Ariyanti, and Khodirin.

The first related study was conducted by Suminar is called. This study aims to find empirical evidence to prove that even 2010/2011 semester, the English summative test items of second-year students in SMP Al-Zahra Indonesia did not have good content validity. The method used in this study was descriptive comparative and quantitative. The result of this study showed that the English summative test at SMP Al-Zahra did not have a good content validity because only 40% of the test items that conformed to the English syllabus ( Suminar ; 2012 ).

The second research was conducted by Dewi, a student of UIN Syarif Hidayatullah Jakarta in her skripsi entitled An Anaysis on Content Validity of the Summative Test at the Second Year Student of SMPN 86 Cilandak Jakarta Selatan ( Dewi ; 2006 ). The research explained about the analysis of content validity through analysis one by one of the item test detail, but she did not explain all aspect in item test. She merely explains about indicator and themes. Moreover, she did not explain it one by one but she combined between both themes and indicators. It makes her analysis become unclear. The finding she gets is all themes and indicators are for total percentage 48% and 52%. It means the test items should be valid but it does not cover all aspect in curriculum.

Next, Ariyanti conducted a research study with the title Analysis on Content validity of the English Summative Test. The method used in this research was comparative descriptive, she compared the summative test items with a number of required items in the syllabus used in teaching and learning activities then calculated the result based on the formula of test item analysis and finally she was described the result of the analysis. The result of the study showed that the test items that conform to the indicators of English syllabus are 42% it falls into level of 40-55% which mean less sufficient ( Ariyanti ; 2012 ).

The last research was conducted by Khodirin entitled content validity of English summative test in the first year of SMK Lingga Kencana Depok. The researcher used comparative descriptive method. He compared the summative test items with the indicators in the syllabus. Then he calculates the result based on the formula of test items analysis. Finally, he describes the result of the analysis. The result of the study showed that the test items that conform to the indicators of English syllabus are 42.9%. Based on the result of the study, it concluded that the English summative test of the first year of SMK Lingga Kencana had a less good level of content validity requirement ( Khodirin ; 2012 ).

So, from all of review of related findings, the difference of this research with the previous studies is that the researcher compare the summative test items with the indicators in the syllabus with curriculum 2013. This research use quantitative descriptive by calculatating the results based on the data from Raters using content validity aspects of English achievement tests and the formula of test items analysis.

D. Conceptual Framework

In getting clearly about the test content validity of achievement test based on the syllabus and based on the goal of the title of this research, so the researcher arrange the conceptual framework as follow :

CHAPTER III

METHODOLOGY OF THE RESEARCH

A. Design of Research

The kind of this research was quantitative descriptive research. According to Creswell ( 2003 ) the methodology of quantitative research maintains the assumption of an empiricist paradigm. The research itself is independent of the researcher. As a result, data is used objectively measure reality. Quantitative research creates meaning through objectivity uncovered in the collected data. Quantitative research can be used in response to retaiional questions of variabels within the research. Quantitative research begins with a problem statement and involves the formation of a hypothesis, a literature review, and a quantitative data analysis.

According to Sugiyono (2008) descriptive research was research conducted to determine the value of an independent variable, either one or more variable (independent) without making comparisons or connecting with other variabels. Descriptive research is one of type of non-experimental quantitative research that is relatively easy. This study describes quantitative data obtained regarding the subject's condition or phenomena from a population.

According to Arikunto (2006) Quantitative descriptive research method was a method that aims to make a picture or descriptive about a situation objectively using numbers, starting from data collection, interpretation of the data and appearance and results. Quantitative research is the quantitative used for identifying the criteria of English final test and content validity of English Achievement Test at Seven Grade Students of Junior High School 16 Kerinci.

B. Sources of Data

This research was conducted English teacher at seven grade of junior high school 16 Kerinci as informant of the research. The total of informant only one teacher.

C. The Objective of the Research

From this case, the researcher was interested to focus is to find empirical evidence if the test items of English Achievement Test carried out at the of junior high school 16 Kerinci have included content validity and in line with the school based syllabus.

Then, the researcher wants to know the information from the English teacher as a test designer of test item, how to construct the good English test and to look for the reasons that there is still some in appropriateness in constructing the English test.

D. The Location of Research

To carry out this study, The researcher decided to chose junior high school 16 Kerinci. which is located in Koto Patah, Semerap Village, Jambi province as the research place. It is because there has not been a similar study and There are problems on most of the questions items written by the teachers and also a test, which does not have content validity for summative test.

E. Instruments of The Research

The research instruments which is use by the researcher in collecting the data from :

1. Paper/ test booklet

In getting The data, the researcher asked the English achievement test paper from the school. The test analyzed is the English achievement test for seven grade at odd semester.

2. English Syllabus

The researcher asked and analyzed the test items on the achievement test and then compare it to the English syllabus and the indicators.

3. Raters

In getting The data, the researcher was given the indicator of validity of English achievement test paper to the rater. In this research use 3 raters used Aiken formula. These steps as follow as :

- a. The first researcher arranges the indicators of the test items based on the validity criteria of the questions
- b. The second that the researcher gave the validity criteria that had been compiled. and also researchers provide test questions and syllabus.
- c. And the last the indicator of English achievement test was analyzed by the raters.

F. Technique of the Data Collecting

The researcher collected the data from an English teacher in junior high school 16 Kerinci and from the raters. The first step is the researcher asked for the syllabus and summative tests for the seven grade of junior high school 16 Kerinci academic year 2020/2021. And then the researcher give the indicator of validity of English achievement test paper to the raters.

G. The Techniques of Data Analysis

The collected data are quantitatively analyzed. Quantitatively, the data are use validity and use calculated using simple percentage formula. It is the validity and simple percentage formula formula:

- 1) Validity

Table 1. Criteria for a valid multiple choice test viewed from various indicator and criteria

Validity Aspect	Indicator	Criteria Validity
		Use Scala Rater
		1	2	3	4	5
Materi- al/Content	1.) The questions must match the questions indicator in the grid. That is, the question must ask the behavior and material to be measured in accordance with the demands of the question indicator.

	2.) Answer choices must be homogeneous and logical in term of material. This means that all answer choices must come from the same material as contained in the subject matter, the writing must be equivalent, and all answer choice must function.
	3.) Each questions must have one correct or most correct answer. That is, one question only has one answer key.
Construction	4.) The subject matter must be formulated clearly and unequivocally. This mean that ability/material to be measured/asked must be clear, does not lead to a different understanding or interpretation from that intended by the author, and constains only one problem for each number.
	5.) The formulation of the main questions and the answer choice must be only required statements. That is, if there is a formulation or statement that is not actually needed, then the formulation or statement is omitted.
	6.) The subject matter does not give clues to the correct answer. This means that is the subject matter that can provide clues to the correct answer.

	7.) The subject matter should not contain statement that are double negative. That is, in the subject matter there should not be two or more words that contain negative meaning.
	8.) The leght of the formulation of the answer choice must be relatively the same. This rule needs to be considered because of the tendency of students to choose the longest answer, because often the longer answer is more complete and is the answer key.
Language	9.) Each question must use language that is in accordance with the indonesian language rules.
	10.) Answer choice do not repeat words or pharases that are not a unified meaning. Put the word on the subject.

2) Formula of Proving Content Validity

To find out this agreement, validity indices can be used, including the index proposed by Aiken (1980; 1985; Kumandi,2014).

The item validity index proposed by Aiken is formulated as follow:

$$V = \frac{\sum s}{n(c - 1)} \dots \dots \dots (2.1)$$

Note of the formula :

$V$  = rater agreement index regarding item validity

$s$  = score assigned by each rater minus the lowest score in category

$n$  = number of raters

$c$  = the number of categories that the rater can choose from.

Table 3. Criteria of Content Validity Result

Criteria of The Content Validity Result
Less 0,4	Low
0,4 – 0,8	Medium
More 0,8	High

3) Simple Percentage Formula

$$P = \frac{N}{F} \times 100 \%$$

Note of the formula : P = Percent age

F = Frequency

N = Number / Amount

The table above, It is used to see how many percent the test covers the instructions of the curriculum. In addition, the writer also compares the percentage with the criteria adopted from H.Douglas Brown opinion ( Brown ; 2003 ).

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSIONS

B. Discussion

1. Content Validity of Achievement Test

Evaluation is one of the thing that cannot be separated in the teaching and learning process. Because, with evaluation the teacher can see the extent of the students' abilities. One of the way for evaluation in teaching is with a test exam. To determine the feasibility of test or question, it is necessary to test the feasibility of questions which are namely content validity.

The results of the analysis of the content validity for the second semester. The content validity for the second semester of SMPN 16 Kerinci has reached a medium content validity. Where the tabulation value of the validity of the second semester multiple choice questions and essay question given by expert is 0,70. That means the validity for the second semester questions has a medium level of validity.

Content validity is an important aspect of design testing. The most important thing to pay attention to when preparing for the test is the content validity, followed by the sample questions ( Phopam ; 1998-19 ). This means that the test designer must first prepare the content validity before proceeding to produce the test project.

Content validity is also called course validity, because the test materials is based on curriculum. As Gareis and Grand explained, the content validity concerned with how far an assessment is in line with the intended learning outcomes, standards, or goals of teaching unit ( Gareis , dkk ; 2008-37 ). Therefore, If there is no content validity in the test for the students, there will be consequences, including: the students cannot demonstrate their skills, and if that irrelevant items appear, students may just give wrong answers because there is no teaching content ( Wiersman ; 1990-185 ).

2. Suitability Achievement Test Based on The Syllabus For the Second Semester

The component that the researcher was used in analyzing the content validity is the indicators from the syllabus, because it is the real form of minimum standard competence that is used for measuring student's behavior, skills, and knowledge. In addition, it has to be covered in teaching-learning process.

In this study, The Researcher wasn't only look at the level of validity of the content of the questions. The other side, the researcher also looked suitability of item test Based on the syllabus. The result of the item suitability based on the syllabus for the first semester has reached 100 % which mean very good. And the result of the item suitability based on the syllabus for the second semester has reached 66,6 % which mean Average. So, from the analyzed the content validity the researcher says that the item must be revised, and the test maker should be careful to make a test.

According to Anastasi dan Urbina (1997), a well constructed test measures every important aspect of a course, including the subject matter , the course objective, and syllabus. Because, a test measures only sample of adomain, the degree to which the test items represent the content of the course is the key issue in content validity.

It is also clear that the result of this finding shows to design the test for teaching-learning purposes. The teacher should have knowledge of language testing, design, master materials taught, understand the need of students, curricullum ( syllabus ), institution, and always work with team teaching.
